A: Stack 'Em High

These rings by Pontus & Hawke were inspired by Asian tribeswomen who wear coiled brass rings around their necks. The subtly colored rings come in brushed or polished finishes. Available at shophelpsy.com.

B: Crystal Crush

It's hard to find sunglasses that are truly from an independent brand, but California-based Raen is just that. We love the feline-esque Volant in Crystal Rose. Meow! Available at raenoptics.com and nyglass.com.

C: All Square

Jewelry design duo Fortune Favors the Brave created these zirconia crystal earrings in a four-way candy-colored palette that will give any outfit a dash of pastel pizzazz. Available at ofakind.com.

D: Mood for Mint

Designer Karim Rashid is hot property right now, and in this collaboration with Alessi, his bold style translates into the perfect modern accessory, the Kaj III timepiece. Available at fab.com.

E: Earthy Tone

The folks at DODOcase are keeping traditional bookbinding techniques alive by re-inventing them for our high-tech world. Whatever your gadget of choice, it will look great in one of these. Available at dodocase.com.

F: Powder Blue

The Candy Store collection by Anton Heunis was inspired by a 60s-style ice cream parlor. This gold-and-blue combination is perfect for the pastel trend, and the handmade jewelry brand incorporates salvaged glass and metals too. Available at shopethica.com.
